

Application Profile: Democratic National Committee-Washington, DC

AEI^{FASTLINKS} was chosen by the Democratic National Committee (DNC) to install a 100BaseT laser link between its Headquarters and a remote site a few blocks away. The challenge was to have this link installed within days of receiving an order; the 10BaseT unlicensed radio link the DNC had been using had failed, cutting off connectivity between the sites. AEI was contacted on a Friday, had the equipment delivered on Saturday, and had installers on-site on Monday. A couple days later, the new link was operational.

The Wireless WAN Pros!

FYI – When Andrew Jackson ran for president in 1828, his opponents tried to label him a “jackass” for his populist views. He picked up on their name calling and turned it to his advantage by using the donkey on his campaign posters. As a result, the donkey became associated with the entire Democratic Party.
